Intervene NOW!

domestic violence intervention

Are you making bad choices in conducting your relationship?

Are you repeating violence you might have seen as a child?

Your partner, and your kids, deserve better!

You deserve better.

Power and control in relationships may seem to have benefits, but they are shallow and short-lived. AND the consequences can be serious and long lasting.

You can do better, but you have to be accountable!

The Intervene NOW! program consists of psychoeducational classes geared toward men and women (in separate groups) who have committed domestic violence against their partners, their children and/or others in their family.

The men's curriculum uses The STOP Program workbook, developed by David Wexler, but taught according to the Duluth model. The women's program (also known as Alternative Choices) uses Turning Points: A Nonviolence Curriculum for Women. Both programs work to comply with the Standards and Guidelines for Batterer Intervention Programs (www.mocadsv.org).
